COME BE A PART OF THE EXCITEMENT of the Los Angeles premiere of a brilliant new film from director-producer Stuart Gordon and Oscar-winning screenwriter David Mamet.

Gordon (RE-ANIMATOR), known for directing gritty, psychological horror stories, has teamed with Mamet (GLENGARRY GLEN ROSS, AMERICAN BUFFALO), the master of the post-modern man, to create this cautionary tale that uses downtown Los Angeles has a backdrop.

Adapted from Mamet's acclaimed play of the same title, the story revolves around a bland business executive whose midlife crisis quickly devolves into a freefall that he mistakes for freedom. In Mamet fashion, the screenplay explores with rapid-fire dialogue the razor-sharp issues of race, gender and class in the context of a personal story of self-discovery, with elements of a film noir thriller integrated throughout the plot.

EDMOND boasts an all-star cast, including William H. Macy in the title role, along with Julia Stiles, Joe Mantegna, Rebecca Pidgeon, Bai Ling, Lionel Mark Smith, Mena Suvari, Denise Richards, Dylan Walsh, Bokeem Woodbine and Debi Mazar.
